- Development of products based on market studies and commercial requirements.
- Provide guidance to sales staff to enhance market position.
- Initiate product launches and product discontinuations.
- Market studies and analyses for future fields of application based on trends.
- Product ideas and adhesive requirements from both a technical and commercial point of view.
- Provide support in marketing activities in areas of print, online, trade shows and business development.

Our Requirements

- Bachelor's degree in business or engineering preferred.
- Experience in product marketing, ideally in the filter industry environment.
- Strong technical aptitude required.
- Professional appearance, excellent oral and written communication skills, and understanding of intercultural differences, as well as flexibility and creativity.
- Structured and independent work habits with strong conceptual and analytical skills.
- Market and customer-oriented mindset.
- Ability to work independently and as part of a team.
- High level of commitment, results-oriented and self-motivated.
- Business fluent in German and English and high willingness to travel.

If you are a motivated sales professional who thrives in a dynamic, fast-paced environment, we encourage you to apply!
